Delaware Eagles Surprise Area Residents With Christmas Cash

The scene repeated itself over and over again. An unsuspecting customer approached the layaway area, eager to pay the remainder of their balance and transport their items home in preparation for the upcoming holiday. What followed came completely by surprise.

Throughout Delaware County, Ohio, members of Fraternal Order of Eagles #376 lingered inside department stores with $100 in tow, eager to bring unexpected joy to those who needed it most.

The recent “Secret Santa” phenomenon had sparked an idea within Trustee Lee Price and soon a new Delaware Eagles Christmas tradition was born.

“Lee had heard about these people helping pay down layaways and thought we should do something to give back,” Delaware member Thad Jordan said.

“We got the project approved and it really took off from there.”

Starting in February, the Eagles held weekly 50/50 raffles organized by Auxiliary officer Linda Ward, with the Eagles’ portion being set aside for a special Christmas project. By December, $7,000 had been raised.

$2,000 was split between local organizations, with the remaining $5,000 dispersed in $100 increments to...

MILWAUKEE REAC WORKERS KNOW HOW TO KEEP BUSY, BE OF SERVICE

NOT TOO OLD TO HELP OTHERS

By John Ciekurzis

Milwaukee, Wis., Aerie’s Retired Eagles Activities Club is proving once again that there’s more to REAC activities than having fun, and residents of the city’s nursing homes know it more than anyone.

The club has undertaken a very helpful project of providing lap robes, wheelchair bags and knit slippers for senior citizens residing in nursing homes in the city. It proves what experts on geriatrics have always maintained - that the way to stay young is to keep useful.

Thus far, the Milwaukee REAC has made about 200 lap robes, another 200 pairs of knit slippers to keep the elderly feet warm, and several hundred bags which patients attach to wheel chairs. These hold necessary personal articles and keep them within easy reach.

In addition to all of this, more than 1,500 candy-filled cups have been assembled, and these, too, will be given to nursing home residents.

The distribution will be made through the facilities of HELP (Happiness for Elderly Lonely People), an agency headed by Father Gene Jakubek, a dynamic Roman Catholic priest.

"It’s wonderful to see what our people have done, and are continuing to do," asserts Victor Leben, president of Milwaukee REAC and one of its founders. "We’ve had over 40 workers, men and women, all busily sewing material together, and our production is becoming more efficient all the time."

It’s an interesting sight to watch the project in operation. REAC workers are busy at sewing machines, and at ironing boards, while others, scissors snipping away, cut the pieces of cloth to proper size.

All of the basic materials were acquired free, either by donation of REAC members themselves, or from collection projects they undertook. For example, a large knitting mill provided $400 worth of yarn used in producing the slippers.

"Our men and women have a great time doing this work," says Leben. "It makes them realize that calendar years mean nothing, that they can provide helpful services at any age for those less fortunate than they themselves."

A look at the project in operation proves the truth of Leben’s words. It is easy to see how the senior Eagles in Milwaukee derive immense satisfaction from their work, and the efficiency of the operation keeps on improving with each passing day.

The sight of a man at an ironing board might appear to be somewhat incongruous, but there seems nothing strange to see men busily ironing away as part of the REAC program.

"It’s fun to do it," says Ella Langer, 83, who’s personally turned out about 25 lap robes. "I know it’s going to bring comfort to many people in nursing homes, so it’s a labor of love."

And Bob Keeling, who has handled a lot of diversified jobs in the project, adds: "I’m retired, with a lot of time on my hands. I can’t think of a better way to spend it."

Yes, REAC’s were organized to provide fun and entertainment for senior Eagles. At Milwaukee, they’re demonstrating that this thesis works both ways.

individuals in need of assistance.

“Veteran’s Services identified several individuals for us who were in need of some help,” Jordan said, “so we went to visit them at home and present them with the donations. You get such a mix of emotions. It’s a powerful thing to be a part of.”

The reactions were much the same inside various area stores. Some cried, others hugged, and all thanked the Eagles repeatedly for their help. What stood out the most was the honesty displayed by everyone involved.

“We approached a lady at the Goodwill store who had four children,” Jordan said. “She thanked us but refused to take our money because she had what she needed to afford a Christmas for her family and asked that we give the donation to someone who might not be so lucky. You don’t expect to find people that honest when you’re doing something like this, but when you do, it means a lot.”

The Eagles’ reach extended far beyond the individual donations presented. Common Ground received $500 in clothing and toys for its free store, which stocks items to be given out free of charge to families in need. Nationwide Children’s Hospital received $500 worth of toys from an area church with money donated by Delaware #376.

“We do a lot of things to benefit diabetes research, Ohio State University Medical Center and other higher-level causes,” Jordan said. “This was a chance to really roll up our sleeves and do something for Delaware County, to help the people in our community who need us the most.”

Their hard work helped strike a bond with The Delaware Gazette, opening a channel of communication to get the word out about future Eagles endeavors.

The Thursday after the final $100 was presented, members were hard at work building their holiday fund for 2014.

“We got right back to work,” Jordan said. “As soon as the last donation went out, it was time to start all over again. We’ve got about $800 already and I’m pretty sure with a full year, we’ll be able to end up with close to $10,000.
